Nowadays the city is still an economic and political center in Southern Italy. It hosts one of the most popular fair exhibitions and a large university focused on trade, economics and engineering. The capital of Puglia is also known for a long and fascinating history that begins back in the pre-Roman age and for being a religious and tourist center that attracts several pilgrims and tourists from all over the world. 5 DAY LOCOROTONDO AND ALBEROBELLO

After breakfast departure to Locorotondo. You probably already know that cheese forms a huge part of Italian cuisine, so what better way to spend part of your time in Puglia than to visit a local cheese farm. The cheesemaker that we visit is not a big business owner or industrial-sized firm; this is a typical, family-run, small business where you can see the old traditions of cheesemaking at work. Here you will get to sample some of the freshest mozzarella and burrata you will taste in your life as well as finding out how these iconic cheeses are made.

Next on our itinerary is the charming town of Locorotondo, famous for its wine and circular historical centre. In fact, the name Locorotondo itself is derived from this very feature of the town; translated into English, the name means 'round place'. As you stroll the town's streets, you will see more of the typical whitewashed houses Puglia is so well-known for and, as the town is perched upon a hill, it is possible to view the surrounding olive groves and countryside. As part of our visit, we will also head to the local food market, where you can see the wonderful array of locally-grown fruit and vegetables which are available here. You'll get to experience one of the most authentic Italian experiences you could ask for. The produce of the land is very important to the local Puglian people and there's no better place to see all the fantastic fruit and vegetables that are grown in the region than the markets where they are sold. Finally, we will visit Alberobello, the iconic town of trulli. Trulli are characteristic conical-roofed houses typical of the region, built from local limestone, and many people comment on how a visit to Alberobello is like walking into a fairy tale. Because the trulli are of such cultural importance to the region, the town was designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1996. We will spend our time here strolling the streets and discovering all its hidden corners. Dinner and overnight.

6 DAY POLIGNANO AND MATERA

After the visit departure to Matera, located in Basilicata region, Matera is definitely something you cannot miss when on a trip to southern Italy. One of the oldest cities in the world whose roots date as far back as the Palaeolithic era, Matera is best known for having a completely unique landscape; made up of 'sassi', grottos and cave dwellings carved out of the local limestone along a ravine, the city's unusual scenery has been the setting of many Hollywood films, such as The Passion of the Christ and Ben-Hur.
